Mr. Mahan Attends Birmingham Dance

In "The Scribblers Take Note," the Birmingham News reports:

"The prize party of the season was given Wednesday night by Warrene and Reuben Streidinger for Warrene's debutante sister, Jeanne Barber. In the form of a barn dance the hosts entertained at the Hollywood Stables, which turned out to be the perfect spot for that type of party. Rustic to the 'nth degree with a tremendous fireplace taking up the entire end wall.

"A professional caller came up from Montevallo to teach all the guests to square dance, Virginia reel, and many another oldtime dance. Lassies will have to do a lot of practicing before they can qualify as experts in that field of dancing. Many a debutante lost her dignity with a slip of her foot and went sprawling to the floor in blushing fashion."

The article quoted above does not name the "professional caller" from Montevallo. However, it had an artist's pen sketch of the person, and to all who saw it, there was no trouble in identifying him as none other than the justly famous square dance authority, Mr. Red Mahan.

No doubt, if those young folks tried to keep pace with Red's set-calling, many of them got their pictures "drawed" on the floor.
